Club Heats Talk On CIA and U.S. Foreign Policy

Dr. Howard Evans, Dean of Muskingum College and a former intelligence officer during World War II, spoke on "Central Intelligence Agency and American Foreign Policy" at the Cambridge Rotary Club meeting Wednesday afternoon at the Lodge Coffee Shop.

During the war, Dr. Evans was a Lieutenant Colonel in the intelligence branch of the service and taught in the Army Intelligence School following the war.

He pointed out that before 1948, the United States had practically no intelligence service but relied primarily on British intelligence sources for information.

He said the Powers, U-2 incident and the Cuban invasion brought the Central Intelligence Agency to the forefront.

"Foreign policy today," Dr. Evans said, "is based on what the opponent is doing and what he will do."

Dr. Evans discussed the Security Council and explained how it was made up of the CIA, National Security Agency, Radio Intercept, Atomic Energy Commission, National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the FBI. He outlined the basic duties of each and how the information was circulated.

Dr. Charles Layton introduced the speaker. Mrs. Daniel Knowlton presided and Frederick W. Roberts was the program chairman.
